A Must-visit Onigiri Restaurant

When someone from overseas thinks about Japanese restaurants, a picture of sushi, tempura, yaki-niku, or ramen may spring to their mind. It is (perhaps) probable that very few people would think of an onigiri restaurant, as this is more of a specialty eatery. Indeed, many towns in Japan do not have such a restaurant. However, there is one onigiri restaurant in Japan that is an absolute must-visit. It is a hidden gem located in the heart of Osaka. Its name is Onigiri Sansai. Its focus is and premium seaweed. Here is a description of it from its website:

"Onigiri Sansai has been serving original, hand-crafted rice balls since 1949. This was at a time when good quality white rice was in short supply in Japan. Chefs Akiyoshi and Tomoko are the third generation of Sansai rice-ball artists. They hope you will visit Sansai to enjoy their special onigiri, made from carefully selected ingredients from the Minami Alps and the Pacific Ocean. In addition, they carefully select the tastiest rice from across Japan. This perfectly suits each of the seasonal vegetables. They also only use local Edo-mae seaweed (famous for its rich favor) to wrap their onigiri in."

Onigiri Sansai is the subject of this week's restaurant review. We sent our three hungry onigiri experts to Osaka to check out the menu, taste, prices, service and ambience. Here are their reviews.

Part 2 Writing Task

Your English teacher has asked you to write to a university student (Alex) in the USA. Alex wants to know about shopping in Japan. Write to Alex to tell her about your favorite shop. Tell her why you like that shop, and explain what you usually buy from it. You need to write 150 words or more.

Part 3 Yuki and Sakura are talking about the presentation they will give tomorrow.

Write what Sakura might say to complete their conversation.

Sakura: ① _____

Yuki: Yeah... I made neat slides, and practiced more than ten times.

Sakura: ② Good! _____

Yuki: Well, actually, no. I've been feeling nervous that I might ...

Sakura: ③ _____

Yuki: You are right. I am a bad public speaker.

Sakura: But the speech you made at graduation was great.

Yuki: Oh, thanks. As you know, practice makes perfect.

Sakura: You're working hard now, so I'm sure

Part 4 Read the article below and answer the question that follows (80~100 words).

The Text Is the Message

More and more these days we are interacting socially by using technologies like email and instant messaging, or texting. Many social critics condemn this kind of communication, primarily because, “To type is not to be human, to be in cyberspace is not to be real”. This encourages

But are email and texting all bad? One professor says in his New York Times essay, “The looseness and creativity of these ways of writing are a sign of a new sophistication in our society”. Keyboard technology has allowed something previously unknown to humanity, until now: text messaging. This is conversation that is typed on smartphones and other digital devices.
